

Heartworm disease is a serious and potentially fatal condition caused by parasitic worms transmitted through mosquito bites. Thankfully, it is preventable with regular testing and preventive medication. This simple blood test is done in-house and takes about 8 minutes and is the best way to ensure your pet stays heartworm-free. Early detection is crucial for effective treatment, making this annual test an important part of your pet's health care. If your pet hasn't had their heartworm test this year or if you're unsure of their testing schedule, please contact us to set up an appointment or visit the client portal on our website to check your pet's reminder status. Keeping your pet on a preventive program is the best defense against heartworm disease, and it starts with this essential test. We're here to help keep your pet happy and healthy, so don't hesitate to reach out if you have any questions or concerns about heartworm disease, the testing process, or preventive care.
